It is in the early 1840's that Anna, the 7th Duchess of Bedford, is first credited with creating the concept of Afternoon Tea. She would request a small meal of treats, including cakes, tarts, and sweets to be taken secretly to her to curb her hunger prior to the traditional dinner time in the evening. When her snacking was uncovered she was not mocked as she had feared, but her habit caught on and the idea of a small meal of treats and tea became the height of fashion. Since then Afternoon Tea has evolved over time and today it is more popular than ever.
